PREFACE.

In presenting to the public this work—the first reliable directory of Staten Island ever issued from the press—the publishers will ask their patrons to excuse the few and slight errors inseparable from a first publication of this kind. The obstacles to be overcome in the preparation and publication of a first directory are numerous and great, and they were especially so in this case, where the territory canvassed extends along the water front for ten miles, and is in many places sparsely settled.

The compilation of the first directory of any place is always beset with difficulties, but these are compensated by the comparative ease with which its successors are arranged by aid of the book itself and the experience gained in its canvass.

Few people outside of the directory business have any conception of the immense amount of labor necessary to produce a work of this character. In fact, the directory, when once a people are accustomed to it, is looked upon as a sort of natural growth, involving only the work of the printer and binder in its preparation. If every man who picks up this book and in a moment possesses himself of information that would otherwise consume hours in its getting, would reflect that perhaps it took the canvasser as long to obtain it, the directory man would be hailed as the public benefactor he is, instead, as is too often the case, as a troublesome book agent. It is a melancholy but patent fact, that the canvasser for a directory is regarded by many, if not by the majority of people, as a sort of itinerent nuisance, devoid of moral or financial responsibility, and regarded as being upon the lower rounds of the social and intellectual ladders. Than this too often held and expressed opinion there can be no greater The canvasser in the course of his travels necessarily comes in contact with ladies and gentlemen, and must therefore be a gentleman. From the varied information gained in palace and hovel, in parlor and kitchen, he must carve an intelligent report for the public, and must therefore be possessed of at least ordinary intelligence. As regards financial responsibility, it must be remembered that the question does not arise in any manner affecting the public, for the reason that all monetary transactions are deferred until the publisher has fulfilled his part. of the contract, and has expended the large amount of capital necessary to pay for the canvass and the publication complete. To their credit be it said, that there are many of the more intelligent people on Staten Island who take this view of the matter, and whose reception and treatment of the gentlemen employed in the preparation and publication of this book has been courtesy itself, and in marked and pleasing contrast to the reception accorded by the unthinking masses.

Having concluded the deprecatory portion of this preface, the publishers propose to show the people of Staten Island how great a quid pro quo they are giving for the price. It is believed that it is not too much to say that within the covers of this book there is more useful and practical information regarding Staten Island than is contained in any other work extant. It does not pretend to be a history, but it does set up the indisputable claim that it is an epitome of the present, full, complete, and reliable. From the title-page to the back cover, there is not a subdivision of the work that does not convey to somebody, facts of which they have hitherto been ignorant, and which, as matters of reference, are valuable to everybody. The brief sketch of the island in the front part of the book, with its comprehensive adjuncts, the chapter on manufactures, and the appendix, contain more accurate and voluminous information in detail, regarding the present condition of Staten Island than any work ever published. This may seem to some people an extravagant assertion, but if any who doubt it will take the trouble to make a comparison, they will find that it is based on a solid foundation of incontrovertible fact.

In addition to the sketch and appendix which, let us here remark, are unusual in the publication of directories, and in this case gratuitously in excess of the contract, there is a very complete list of the names and residences of the people living within the limits of the territory it was advertised to cover, as well as a directory of streets, and a classified list of business houses.

In the appendix it has been sought to give as complete a list of churches, schools, departments, officers, etc., as possible, and where there are omissions, the people most nearly interested must bear the blame. Calls innumerable, and reams of postal cards have been thrown away in vain endeavors to procure detailed information. This has been particularly the case with some of the churches, and the absence from the appendix of anything but mere mention is due to the fact that our calls and postals have been provocative of nothing but indifference.

Summing up this work as a whole, the publishers feel justified in saying, in addition to what has already been said, that its value is not only of the present, but that in after years there will be found copies of it carefully stowed away as a reliable work of reference regarding the condition of Staten Island at the time of its publication, and it is believed to be not too much to say that the future historian will turn to its pages with pleasure and profit.

With sincere thanks to those who have received us in a spirit of courtesy, to the public for its generous support, to the press for the wise discrimination that induced its hearty aid, and the expression of the hope that the masses will learn to look upon the directory man as he should be looked upon,

We are their obedient servants,

THE PUBLISHERS.

STATEN ISLAND.

General Description and Details.

Location—Staten Island, or as it was called by Hendrik Hudson in July, 1609, Staaten Eylant (the Island of the States), and by the aboriginees, Aquehonga Manacknong (the place of bad woods), is situated in the Bay of New York, about seven miles southwesterly from the City at Tompkinsville, the nearest point. In form the island is an irregular triangle, its greatest length being a trifle over thirteen and a half miles, while its extreme breadth is about seven and three-fourths miles. The superficial area is twenty-seven square miles or 17,347 acres, about two-thirds of which are improved or under cultivation, the other third being composed of salt meadows, on which there is only produced a kind of grass that is dried into what is known as salt hay, a nutritious and pleasant food for cattle.

In its surface the island presents all the pleasing diversities of formation that are to be found in other favored localities. The richly bearing valleys are backed by stately forest-crowned hills, that rise almost to the dignity of mountains, and from whose summits there is a view unsurpassed in all this great western world. The toil-worn denizen of the great city visiting these heights, as he stands in mute contemplation of the glorious scene spread out before him, sees to the north and west a panorama, the central figure of which is the great City, whose industries support not a few of the inhabitants of the island. As his eye follows the course of that mighty river, which takes its name from the adventurous explorer who was the first civilized man to sail on its bosom, he sees on the western shore

Jersey City, with its suburbs Hoboken and Weehawken. As he glances around towards the east, the busy eastern front of New York is before him, and following across that most striking object, the East River Bridge, New York's sister city, Brooklyn, falls under his delighted gaze. Following the western out-lines of this, the "City of Churches," his eye next encounters Fort Lafayette, at the Narrows, and just beyond, the great popular summer resort for the overheated New Yorker, Coney Island, with its skeleton observatory pointing towards the sky, a mute but eloquent witness to the ingenuity of man and a forcible reminder of the delights of its abiding place. Next, and to the southward, reposing calmly on the surface of old Ocean, rise the Quarantine Islands, with their imposing hospital buildings, and beyond them, Sandy Hook and the light-ship. Completing the circle to the westward is the Jersey shore, with its busy manufactories, its smoky oil refineries, and its recently constructed docks, fringed with a thicket of masts. Still farther westward and towards the horizon, is the delightful city of Newark, fronted by the charming bay which bears its name, while between flows the beautiful Kill Van Kull, on whose placid tide a thousand craft glide to and fro with passengers on business or on pleasure bent. After a feast on all this beauty, the sightseer turns his attention to the island and discovers that he has alighted on one of Nature's most favored spots. Hill and valley, forest and lawn, palace and cottage, town and country, farm and nursery, industry and thrift, the old and the new, business and pleasure meet him at every turn, and form a combination at once pleasing and surprising. grandeur of the lordly hill is in striking contrast to the peaceful green of the productive valley, the mysterious gloom of the thickly growing forest is an impressive foil to the clipped verdancy of the well-kept lawn, the palace of the rich is jostled by the lowly habitation of the poor, the town-like bustle of the shore encroaches on the confines of blossoming farms, and the newly-built structures of business or residence stand side by side with the quaint old houses of the hardy Hollanders whose first representatives made their homes on Staten Island more than two centuries ago. Here is a manufacturing establishment with its hum and whirr of business, and a few yards away is one of the pleasure resorts for which the island is noted, whence floats on the breeze the sounds of mirth, the music of the bands and the greatest of all music, the laughter of happy children.

When he has seen all this, the refreshed man turns his steps towards the steamer which is to bear him swiftly homeward, and as he steams up the Bay casts a lingering glance behind and marks Staten Island on the tablets of his memory as the fairest spot of earth that gems the bosom of the sea.

The soil of the island may be set down as fertile—in some localities unusually so—but two centuries of cultivation has so far exhausted it that fertilization becomes frequently necessary. It is well watered by natural springs of excellent quality, which are the sources of the numerous brooks and rivulets used by the farmers for the purposes of irrigation.

In climate, the island is salubrious, except in cases of lung and throat affections, which are apparently aggravated by the saline atmosphere. In this connection it will not be amiss to say a few words anent the extravagant and ridiculous reports which have reached the outside world, and which are credited by many uninformed Staten Islanders, regarding the extraordinary prevalence of malarial disorders. Extended interviews with local physicians and the older residents, as well as a careful study of mortuary and vital statistics, have convinced the writer that instead of being the "home of malaria," as it has been called, it is as free from that affliction as most places, and will compare favorably with any locality in the vicinity of New York city. It is true that in some spots, where the land is marshy and where the natural formation of the surface is such as to render proper drainage difficult or impossible, malarial disorders are more common than is either comfortable to the residents or conducive to the reputation of the island for salubrity. This, however, does not apply to the territory covered by the scope of this work, and it is safe to say that than the north and south shores of Staten Island, from Mariners' Harbor to Fort Wadsworth, there is no more healthy place on earth. This assertion is largely borne out by the extreme longevity of the residents, many of whom reach in years a point far beyond the allotted "three score and ten."

The products of the land embrace all the cereals, fruit, vegetables, etc., to be found elsewhere in this latitude, and in such quantities as to make the farmer's lot indeed a happy one. Besides these, we find mines of brown hematitic iron ore and granular oxide of iron, large quantities of which are daily shipped to the smelting furnaces. In addition to this very useful ore are many deposits of asbestos, which is mined in small quantities and at uncertain intervals. One of the most important of the mineral products of the island is a deposit of clay near Rossville, which is manufactured into gas retorts and other articles, at a factory at Kreischerville, owned and conducted by a gentleman from whom the place takes its name. The other minerals found here may be briefly summed up as chalcedony, jasper, lignite, crystallized pyrites, dolomite, brucite, gurhofite, and serpentine.

Chief among the industries of the island is the oyster trade. This is carried on at different localities on both the north and south shores, principally at and near Mariners' Harbor on the former, and at Princes Bay on the latter. The trade is not alone in the oysters raised or fattened on the shores of the island, but its ramifications extend to the shores of Long Island and thence to the rivers and bays of the Southern States. Numerous large and small schooners are engaged in carrying the matured mollusk to a market in New York, while as many perform the labor of bringing from the South the young oysters used for planting. In this business there are many of the old residents engaged, who number their employes by the hundred

The population of Staten Island closely approximates 40,000 souls, a majority of whom are "native and to the manner born." In no other community in the United States can be found so large a proportion of population born and raised on the soil, and the visitor is impressed with the idea that the island must be a pleasant and profitable place to live, when so many of its natives elect to resist the attractions of the outside world and remain for all their lives at home. The stranger who peruses these pages may say or think that when it is stated that the island contains a population of 40,000, the 8,000 names in this work do not adequately represent such population. For the benefit of those who entertain this reflection (if there be any such), it is explained here, that this work does not pretend to be a directory of the entire island, but only of those portions on the northern and smaller end which are thickly populated. By applying a familiar test, it will be found that the names printed represent a total population of about 32,000 people, leaving the other 8,000 scattered over the large area not embraced.

The division of the island into towns and villages, and its government, are matters that are sometimes puzzling to the stranger, and, for their enlighten-ment, a brief account will be given. The island is a County (Richmond) in itself, and forms with Suffolk and Queens counties a Congressional District. In the State Senate it is represented by a Senator elected jointly with a portion of the First Ward of New York City, and in the Assembly by one Assemblyman elected entirely within the County. The County officers consist of five Supervisors, one from each town; a Sheriff, a County Clerk, a County Treasurer, a District Attorney, and four Coroners. The judiciary is represented by the County Judge, who is also Surrogate, elected by the people at large, and twenty Justices of the Peace, elected in the different towns, each town being allowed These Justices have jurisdiction, in their own towns, in petty civil cases and criminal misdemeanors. They also sit as committing magistrates.

The island or county is divided into five towns, which are mentioned in the order of their population and wealth as follows: Castleton, Middletown, Southfield, Northfield, and Westfield. In these towns are the villages of New Brighton, Edgewater and Port Richmond. The first named embraces the town of Castleton, and is co-extensive therewith. It is governed under a special charter, there being no town government and no town officers, save four Justices of the Peace, three Assessors, three Excise Commissioners, the Collector of Taxes, and four Constables. Edgewater takes in all of the town of Middleton, and the thickly populated portion of the town of Southfield, the remainder of the town being governed by the usual town officers. Port Richmond covers a portion of the town of Northfield, the remainder of which is under the town government. No portion of the town of Westfield, which embraces in area about one-third of the island, and in population less than one-seventh of the whole, is attached to either of the villages, and the government is identical in character with other towns in the State. Each town, with the exception of Castleton, elects, in addition to a Supervisor, a Board of three Assessors, a Tax Collector, a Town Clerk, three Auditors, four Justices of the Peace, three Excise Commissioners, four Constables, a Sealer of Weights and Measures, and, where there are separate road districts, Highway Commissioners. [For list of officers, see appendix.] The Superintendents of the Poor, of which there is one from each town, are elected by the people of the county-at-large, and serve for a term of five years, an election for one member taking place each year.

The governments of the villages of New Brighton, Edgewater and Port Richmond are administered by Boards of Trustees. In New Brighton, the largest and most important of the villages, the Board consists of six members, one from each ward. The term of service is two years, the trustees from the even and odd numbered wards being elected in alternate years. The Board elects one of their number as President of the village and Chairman of the Board, a village Treasurer, Engineer and Clerk. They also appoint a Board of Health, consisting of three members, who serve without pay and who in turn appoint a health officer.

In Edgewater there are but two wards, each of which sends a trustee in alternate years. There is also elected, once in two years, a trustee at large, chosen by the people of both wards, who is President of the village and Chairman of the Board, by virtue of such election. This Board also appoints a Treasurer, Engineer, and Clerk. There is no village Board of Health, the duties of such a board being performed by the Justices of the Peace and the Supervisors of the towns wholly or in part embraced within the limits of the village.

The village of Port Richmond has four Trustees, and the manner of election and term of service are the same that prevail in New Brighton. This Board elects one of its number as President, and appoints a Treasurer, Clerk, Collector, and Street Commissioner. There is also in this village a Board of three Assessors. The duties of the Board of Health devolve on the Northfield Board, which consists of the Supervisor and the Justices of the Peace.

The facilities for the education of the youth of Staten Island, indicate that the rising and coming generations will be more than ordinarily well-informed. In the four towns of which this sketch chiefly treats, there are twenty district schools, besides a very large number of private educational institutions for both sexes. The public school system is presided over by a School Commissioner elected by the voters of the county, while the immediate government of each district is administered by a Board of three Trustees, a Clerk, and a School Tax Collector, elected within the district. The standard of scholarship in all the schools will compare favorably with that of any part of the United States.

One of the most pleasant features of life on the island, and one which is doubtless largely due to its educational advantages, is the large number of social and literary societies. Every town, village and hamlet has one or more such organizations, the meetings of which are conducive, not only to the improvement of the mind, but productive of much good in other ways, notably in the polish of manner so universal among the resident youth.

Another striking feature in the economy of Staten Island is the number and character of its benevolent and charitable institutions. Chief among these in point of size and wealth is the Sailors' Snug Harbor, a collection of elegant and imposing buildings, delightfully situated in New Brighton, on the shore of the Kill Van Kull, and commanding an extensive view of the upper bay, New York, Brooklyn and the New Jersey shore. This institution shelters, feeds and clothes nearly eight hundred superannuated seamen, whose only warrant for admission is the attested facts that they have sailed for five years under the American flag and are incapacitated for further service. This noble charity is supported by the income of property in New York City, left for the purpose of establishing such an institution by Captain Robert Richard Randall, who died in 1801, and who during the later portion of his life resided on a farm bounded on the south by what is now known as Astor Place, and extending westward beyond Mercer street. The income of this property is now so great that the Trustees of the institution are compelled to expend a large portion of it in the erection of new buildings, and constant repairs to the older ones. After a litigation of the will lasting about thirty years, the Supreme Court of the United States decided in favor of the Trustees, and in 1831 the present site was purchased. The first inmates were received in August, 1833, increasing in numbers from that time to the present writing from less than a dozen to over seven hundred. Besides the massive cut stone and brick buildings for the housing of the inmates, there are a church, hospital, and elegant residences for the officers and physicians, as well as the necessary buildings for carrying on the farm attached to the institution. The grounds and farm embrace an area of 172 acres. all that not used for other purposes being under cultivation. Visitors are admitted on week-days, and from them and others many of the inmates derive a considerable income by the sale of baskets, hammocks, and other articles made in a large workshop provided for the purpose.

On the grounds in the rear of the property formerly occupied by the Seamen's Retreat at Clifton, is situated the Mariners' Family Asylum, an institution for the shelter of the aged wives, mothers and daughters of seamen of the Port of New York, one of the worthiest charities on the island.

The S. R. Smith Infirmary, at Tompkinsville, is an hospital for the temporary accommodation of persons suffering from accidents or disease. It was established in 1861 by the Medical Society of Richmond County, and has done a work that could only be done in such an institution. Hundreds of unfortunates have reason to bless the kindly forethought that suggested its establishment, and the unfailing zeal with which the medical gentlemen of the county have given their gratuitous services. The Infirmary is supported entirely by voluntary contributions, and occasional bequests. It takes its name from Dr. Samuel R. Smith, a popular and respected physician, who died some time prior to the inception of the plan which has resulted in so much benefit to the indigent sick.

The Diet Kitchen for the sick poor is located in Stapleton. It furnishes delicacies to the sick who are unable from poverty to obtain them, and otherwise assists the deserving. It was incorporated this year, 1882, and fills a want long felt.

Among the many other worthy charities and benevolent institutions and societies on the island, may be mentioned the Industrial School, at West New Brighton, the Nursery and Child's Hospital at the same place. St. Mary's Orphan Asylum at Clifton, Der Deutsche Frauen K. U. Verein on Staten Island, at Stapleton; the German Mutual Benevolent Association of Staten Island, also at Stapleton, and the Father Matthew Total Abstinence and Benevolent Society at New Brighton. Besides these there is the Seaside Nursery of St. John's Guild of New York, situated on the south beach near New Dorp. This excellent institution is used during the summer as a hospital and sanitarium for the sick children of the poor of New York City, who are given the benefits of care, attendance, medicine, and pure air without charge and until convalescence or death takes place. It is a noble charity.

A list of officers and particulars regarding most of these will be found in the appendix.]

The numerous and well attended churches, of all the Christian denominations, to be found on Staten Island, are evidences that the spiritual welfare of its residents is carefully looked after. On the north and south shores, and within the territory here treated of, there are twenty-six churches and chapels, divided as follows: Baptist, three; Episcopal, six; Lutheran, two; Methodist Episcopal, five; Presbyterian, three; Reformed, two; Roman Catholic, five; Ünitarian, one.

(For particulars, see appendix.)

Besides cultivating the graces of mind and manner, the dwellers on Staten Island evince a considerable interest in the development of their muscles. Among the many clubs for this sort of exercise may be mentioned the Clifton Boat Club, Harbor Boat Club, Staten Island Athletic Club, Staten Island Cricket and Base Ball Club, Staten Island Rowing Club. Prominent among these organizations are the Staten Island Athletic Club, whose elegant boat-house adorns the shore of the Kill Van Kull at New Brighton, and the Staten Island Cricket and Base Ball Club, whose grounds on the shore at Tompkinsville cover an area of nine acres, and are undoubtedly the best arranged and most pleasantly located ball, cricket, and tennis grounds in this or any other country. (For officers of these and other clubs, see appendix.)

The atmosphere of the island seems to be attractive to gentlemen of literary and artistic tastes and pursuits, many of whom have made it their home. Among those at present residing there may be instanced Mr. George Wm. Curtis, editor of Harper's Weekly: Mr. Bartley Campbell, the celebrated dramatic author; Mr. Wm. Winter, the graceful dramatic and art critic, whose writings adorn the pages of the New York Tribune, and

Mr. Wyatt Eaton, the world-famous artist.

During the heated summer months a large proportion of the rest and pleasure-seeking people of New York turn towards Staten Island. For their accommodation there are a number of well-conducted hotels, chief among them being the Pavilion Hotel, fronting the Bay at New Brighton; the St. Mark's Hotel, also at New Brighton, and commanding an extensive view; the Bay View Hotel at Tompkinsville Landing, and Peteler's South Beach Pavilion on the shore near New Dorp. In addition to these, there is the Richmond Beach Hotel, on the beach beyond Fort Wadsworth, one wing of which is completed and open for business. This establishment will be, when finished, the finest hotel building on the Island.

While these places are intended to cater to the wants and pleasures of the rich, the other classes have not been forgotten, and for their entertainment there are numerous parks and gardens, where all the necessaries and luxuries are dispensed at reasonable rates. Commencing on the south, and near Peteler's Pavilion, is Burbank's Richmond Club grounds, with its race course, ball field, camp ground, dancing platform and other adjuncts to pleasure. This is the great resort for chowder and clam-bake parties, as well as for coaching clubs and encampments, most of the parties coming from New York City. Next on New York avenue, Clifton, and near Fort Wadsworth, is Gebhardt's Park, where picnic parties, shooting societies, and others in search of pleasure resort. A short distance northerly from this, and on the same avenue, is Martin's Atlantic Garden, where pleasant grounds, a spacious dancing platform, rustic arbors, and a good hotel combine to make the picnickers' or visitors' stay most pleasant. On Willow avenue, Clifton, a short distance from the shore, is a summer garden, kept by Antonio Meucci, who was a partner of the late Gen. Garibaldi, during the latter's residence on Staten Island. The house which now serves the purposes of a saloon was occupied by the General and Mr. Meucci as a residence, and is the shrine at which all patriotic Italians in this country pay their homage. Still farther to the north, and opposite the third landing of the Railway Ferry Company's boats at Clifton, is Lewis's Bay View Pavilion, the distinctively family resort of the island. On the crest of a gently sloping hill, whence is obtained one of the finest views on the island, stands an ancient house, known as the Simonson Homestead, now owned by the Vanderbilt family. This is occupied for the purposes of an hotel, and is surrounded by extensive grounds, that slope away towards the rear into a charming valley, where families can picnic to their hearts' content. Stately trees stand thickly round, and temper with their grateful shade the fiercer rays of the searching sun, while the cool breeze from the lower bay recalls the less oppressive weather of balmy spring. This resort, established for only two seasons, has already attained to an enviable reputation. Following the shore around and going up Richmond Turnpike at Tompkinsville, about three-fourths of a mile from the landing, is Franzreb's Silver Lake Park, situated on the shore of the woodland Lake, from which it takes its name. Stages from the landing convey passengers for a trifling charge, and the visitor is amply repaid for his trouble and outlay by a sight of the beauties of the surroundings, and the good cheer provided at the hotel. On the extreme north shore is Elm Park, situated in the village of Port Richmond, and opposite the last landing of the North Shore ferry. This is a great resort for the middle classes, and on Sundays especially it is patronized by large crowds of New Yorkers. Added to these are the gardens attached to most of the breweries, where the visitors during the late spring, the summer and the early autumn, may be numbered by thousands.

Not the least important feature in the economy of Staten Island is its ferries and railroads. Of the first named there are two connecting the island with New York, one with Bergen Point, New Jersey, one with Constable Hook, the location of the Standard Oil Company's Works, and one (at Tottenville) with Perth Amboy, this latter being an adjunct to the Staten Island Railway and Ferry. The Staten Island Railway or South Shore Ferry runs hourly during the day from the foot of Whitehall street, New York, to Tompkinsville, Stapleton and Clifton, from which latter place passengers and freight are transported by the Staten Island Railway to the southern and western portions of the island, and by the ferry mentioned, to Perth Amboy, New Jersey. This company owns four large ferry-boats, two of them being in constant use, one for extra trips and one for a reserve. They are named respectively, the Northfield, Southfield, Westfield and Middletown. The Southfield, built last year, is probably the largest and finest ferry-boat plying the waters in the vicinity of New York. Besides the boats mentioned the company are the owners of the Staten Island Railway, running from Clifton to Tottenville and fully equipped with first-class rolling stock. The steamer Maid of Perth, connecting Tottenville with Perth Amboy, is also owned by this company, and is part of the system. The time of leaving New York and Clifton is on the even hour, extra or half hour boats being run mornings and evenings during the busy season in the summer.

The North Shore Ferry is run by the New York and Staten Island Steamboat Company, whose three boats, the Castleton, Pomona and Thomas Hunt, make hourly trips from the dock adjoining that of the South Shore Ferry, at the foot of Whitehall street, New York, to New Brighton, Snug Harbor, West New Brighton, Port Richmond and Elm Park. These boats leave New York on the half hour, thus, in conjunction with the other ferry, rendering it possible to visit the island or return at any time during the day without the necessity of

The Ferry to Bergen Point is conducted by a boat which leaves Port Richmond at short intervals during the day and evening.

* Owing to an oversight in making up the forms, the list of officers of this company failed to be placed under the proper head. The deficiency is here supplied, as follows: New York and Staten Island Steamboat Co—Incorporated 1878; Capital, $50,000. Officers—John H. Starin, President; Chas. F. Starin, Secretary; James D. Spraker, Treasurer; Superintendent, Anning Smith; Gen'l Ticket Agent, S. T. Bulkley. Steamers—Castleton, Pomona, Thos. Hunt.

The Staten Island Shore Railroad is the only horse railroad on the island. There are two lines operated, one from the Tompkinsville landing on the South Shore to the upper end of West New Brighton on the North Shore, and the other from Tompkinsville, near the landing, along the South Shore to Fort Wadsworth. The length of both roads is about six miles, and the trips are hourly.

(For further information and lists of officers of ferry and railway companies, see appendix.)

Besides the Western Union Telegraph Company, there is at present no similar company doing business on the island. The Baltimore and Ohio Company has lately erected their lines on the island, and have laid cables across the Narrows at Fort Wadsworth and across the Kills near Tottenville, the first connecting with New York and the other with New Jersey. It is probable that this company will establish offices on the island.

The Staten Island Telephone Exchange Co. (Limited) has been established a little over a year, and has met with such general success that its projectors are already reaping a fair return on their investment. (See appendix for particulars.)

The post offices on the north and south shores are Stapleton and Tompkinsville on the south shore, and New Brighton, West New Brighton, Port Richmond and Mariners' Harbor on the north shore. These, it must be understood, are not the only offices on the island, but are those within the bounds here embraced The office at Stapleton is the principal or distributing office, all mails for or from the other offices being received or distributed there.

The sole financial institution on the island is the Staten Island Savings Bank, all commercial banking being done in New York. This inconvenient state of affairs has stimulated several capitalists to the formation of a national business bank, and it is probable that such an enterprise will be inaugurated before the close of the present year, 1882.

Among the many conveniences enjoyed by the dweller on Staten Island is a good quality of illuminating coal gas, manufactured at the Richmond County Gas Company's works at Clifton. The system of pipes laid by this company extends through the more important portions of the villages of Edgewater, New Brighton and Port Richmond, the gas being principally used by private consumers, only one village, Edgewater, indulging in street lamps in which gas is burned. The streets of the village of New Brighton are unlighted, save in the First Ward, where there are about 190 street lamps fed by gasoline, for the maintenance of which there is a special tax in that ward. The remainder of the village streets, as well as all those of Port Richmond, are unlighted, except in spots where private enterprise has supplied the deficiency.

The Staten Island Water Supply Company was incorporated in September, 1878, and in 1880 began laying their pipes in the village of New Brighton, the water being let on August 15, 1881. The supply is obtained from a number of large wells in West New Brighton and pumped into a reservoir on the summit. of Fort Hill, New Brighton, whence it is distributed in the mains throughout the village. In addition to supplying New Brighton, the company sells large quantities of water to the manufactories and refineries on the New Jersey shore, large boats built for the purpose being used for its transportation from the company's dock near the New Brighton Ferry landing. The company has been for a long time in negotiation with the authorities of the village of Edgewater, and the indications point to a commencement of operations in that village early in 1883.

There are few places that enjoy so ample a protection against fire as do the north and south shores of Staten Island. On the south shore there is a fire force known as the Edgewater Fire Department, consisting of five engines, two hook and ladder companies, four hose companies and two bucket companies. These are assisted by a fire police, an organization similar in its character to the fire insurance patrol of New York. On the north shore and in the villages of New Brighton and Port Richmond, the force is known as the North Shore Fire Department, and comprises four engines, four hook and ladder companies and one hose company. Besides these there is at Travisville a recently organized hook and ladder company not yet chartered or attached to any department.

The one great deficiency in the administration of affairs in Richmond County is the inadequacy of the police force in point of numbers While there cannot be found elsewhere a more competent, vigilant, or efficient police force, its paucity of numbers renders it impossible that so large a territory as that within the bounds of Staten Island can be properly protected. The force is governed by a Board of three Commissioners, who are elected by the Board of Supervisors for a term of three years, one Commissioner being elected each year. There is a Chief Clerk, appointed yearly by the Commissioners, whose duty it is to keep the records of the department and act as Secretary to the Police Board. The force proper consists of a captain, two sergeants, two roundsmen or acting sergeants, and twenty-five patrolmen. Each station has a janitor or door-man, appointed by the Commissioners, but not designated or allowed as a member of the As but half of the force can be on duty at one time, it will be seen that the entire island, from Tompkinsville to Tottenville, and from Clifton to Elm Park, is practically policed by a force of twelve or thirteen men, assisted by a sergeant or roundsman, whose duty is to remain at the desk in the station and record the doings of the officers, arrests, etc. It is true that this force is augmented in a degree by numbers of special policemen or private watchmen, who are paid by the persons whose premises they watch, and who are appointed, with full police powers, by the Commissioners; but with all this there are very large sections of the county entirely without police protection from one year's end to the other.

Last, but not least, in the recapitulation of the attractions of the island, may be mentioned the newspapers. It has been said, and it seems to the writer, truly, that the character of a community may be judged by the number of its newspapers. If this complimentary allusion to "the Eighth Estate" be well founded, the character of Staten Island's community is of a remarkably high standard, for there are published in the villages of New Brighton and Edgewater no less than seven newspapers, all of them presenting an appearance of thrift. New Brighton has four, viz.: the Gazette and Sentinel, published semi-weekly, on Wednesdays and Saturdays; the Richmond County Democrat, weekly, on Saturdays; the Richmond County Standard, weekly, on Saturdays, and the Staten Island Star, weekly, on Fridays. Edgewater has the Richmond County Herald, published weekly on Fridays; the Staten Island Leader, weekly, on Saturdays, and Der Deutsche Staten Islander, printed in German and published every Saturday. While these journals are all published in the villages of New Brighton and Edgewater, their circulation is only limited by the confines of the island, and the matters discussed and reported are of general interest. In politics The Democrat, Herald, Star, Leader and Der Deutsche Staten Islander are Democratic, while the Republicans of the county, who are in a minority of about 1,400, are represented by the Gazette and Sentinel and the Standard.

Before concluding this sketch, it may be well to offer a brief explanation as to the signification of the capital letters used in the body of this work to designate localities, and also to explain to the uninformed why there are so many different names for places. The directory of names and residences, as well as the business directory, were made up without regard to village lines, but solely in reference to their contiguity to the landings of either ferry, which are designated by the proper initial, as T. for Tompkinsville, P. R. for Port Richmond, etc. In making up the directory of streets, it was thought better to affix the initial of the village in which the street or avenue is located or has its starting point; hence the letters E. for Edgewater, N. B. for New Brighton, and P. R. for Port Richmond. It may be further explained that the local names applied to the landings and the adjacent territory have, in most cases, no geographical value, but are simply the result of a continuation of the titles bestowed by force of circumstances, although in the cases of Stapleton, Tompkinsville, West New Brighton, and Mariner's Harbor, the names are recognized by the postal authorities and the respective offices are so entitled.

After having thus discussed the salient points of Staten Island's present, it seems to the writer that he may be allowed to venture a prediction as to its future, and acting upon that idea, and on careful observation, he submits his opinion that in the near future, far within the bounds of the lives of the present generation, the growing commerce of the metropolis which is slowly but surely reaching out its hundred giant arms to find havens for its thousand ships, must, by the in-exorable force of circumstances and the all-conquering law of necessity, seize upon the shores of Staten Island, concealing them with a phalanx of docks at whose sides will lay fleets of the white-winged messengers of commerce, the needs and business of which will sustain that increase of population for whom there is so much room and so great a need. Already the American docks at Tompkinsville have demonstrated the usefulness of the island, commercially, and they are but the pioneers of the great army yet to come. Every friend of Staten Island will join the writer in the hope that the conservative gentlemen who now control the water fronts and who seem to desire that the island shall be but a sleeping-place for the business men of New York and a place of elegant residences, will awake to the possibilities of good to be accomplished by an influx of population and business, and lend their aid to such a happy result. When this shall have been done, the ferry companies will be justified, by increased travel, in a reduction of fare, and Staten Island will have attained the position and prosperity that are her undoubted due.

MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

It is the general impression with the public that Staten Island has not a variety of manufacturing establishments. Further on we make mention in our alphabetical list of the articles made on the north and south shores, which will interest the outside world and surprise the resident. Notwithstanding all these, the one great interest having a national reputation and overshadowing all others is the manufacture of lager beer. The island appears to have been selected as a locality peculiarly adapted to this branch of industry, on account of the number and copiousness of its springs and excellent water. The larger establishments we mention in alphabetical order, as follows:

Frederick Bachmann's Clifton Brewery.

This establishment was founded in 1851 by that distinguished patriot General Garibaldi and his partner, Antonio Meucci, the latter of whom is proprietor of a summer resort near by. Since their day it has passed through the proprietorship of Louis Gross, Christian Trefz, Gabriel Mayer, and Mayer & Bachmann. At the death of Gabriel Mayer, about nine years since, his brother David succeeded him as partner of Mr. Bachmann, until November 26, 1881, when, on his decease, Mr. Bachmann succeeded wholly to the business. Commencing in 1851 with six or seven employes, this business has grown to massive proportions, employing about one hundred people in all the departments and producing last year 250,000 kegs. The buildings and grounds occupy two acres. At the Centennial Exhibition, Philadelphia, in 1876, Mr. Bachmann was the only one who received the first prize for the purity and excellence of his beer.

George Bechtel, Proprietor Bechtel's Lager Beer Brewery.

Ten minutes' walk from Stapleton Landing brings one to this establishment, surrounded by wide spreading linden trees and overshadowed by the hills of Staten Island, under which are the immense vaults, where, in immense tuns, surrounded by an atmosphere of from thirty to thirty-four degrees Fahrenheit, 20,000 barrels of beer are constantly stored. The father of the present proprietor established this business in 1858, and passed it to the son's hands in 1865. The grounds extend over three and one-half acres, and the principal building is built of brick and is five stories in height. The distinction Mr. Bechtel has achieved as the manufacturer of pure beer is attested in the possession of a medal of merit won at the Centennial Exhibition in 1876, the first prize medal of the Gambrinus Verein; the first premium at Paris, 1878, and the same award at Sydney, 1880.

Following is a quotation from an unsolicited letter which was unexpectedly received by Mr. Bechtel in 1878:

"I have examined your clear and sparkling lager beer, and find it to be a preparation made from pure malt and hops; free from any deleterious substances, and when partaken of in moderation, is a refreshing and nutritious stimulant. Congratulating you on your success in this elaborate and delicate chemical operation,

I remain, yours respectfully,

R. Ogden Doremus, M.D., LL.D.

Professor of Chemistry and Texicology in the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, and Professor of Chemistry and Physics in the College of the City of New York."

The production of this brewery is 80,000 barrels per year, and the capacity 100,000.

Charles Bischoff, Proprietor of Charles Bischoff's Lager Beer Brewery.

The present proprietor is well known and long established as one of the famous brewers of the country. His new brewery was erected in 1868, his increasing business necessitating at that time the building of the same. The premises are about 550 feet square, and the vaults, which extend under the hill, which is continuous, are capable of storing 8,000 barrels of lager. The water supplied from three wells on the premises has valuable properties not always obtainable, which in no small degree contributes much towards the excellence of "Bischoff's beer."

Mr. Bischoff is assisted in his business by his three sons, Charles, Louis and Emil, all native Americans, and all of whom are thoroughly practical in the different departments of the business.

Almost equally distant from the two landings of the New York Ferry, Stapleton and Clifton, an easy walk up a gently rising declivity, and at the foot of a majestic hill covered with umbrageous verdure, and from which may be enjoyed a delightful view—we know of no more beautiful situation than that occupied by this brewery. It will well repay a visit, and its worthy proprietor is noted for his genial hospitality and unvarying courtesy. As long as Staten Island produces American lager beer, so long will that production be associated with the name of Charles Bischoff.

Rubsam & Horrmann's Atlantic Brewery

is situated about a quarter of a mile from the Stapleton or second landing. It was originally established in the year 1850, by Mr. Wolf, afterwards of the firm of Engel & Wolf, of Philadelphia, who was the first to introduce lager beer brewing into the United States.

Mr. Wolf was succeeded by Messrs. Rosenbaum & Strauss; and in 1870 Mr. Rubsam purchased the brewery of Rosenbaum & Strauss, and, in conjunction with Mr. August Horrmann, laid the foundation of their present extensive business. As a brewer of lager beer, Mr. Joseph Rubsam stands second to none, either in the United States or Germany. He learned "the noble secret how to brew" at Fulda, in Hessen, and his first practical experience in this country was as foreman in the brewery of Messrs. Rommelt & Leicht, on the Heights at Hoboken, N. J. From thence he removed to Staten Island, and whilst there, he did more to popularize, throughout the Eastern States, Staten Island lager beer than any other brewer. The present firm of Rubsam & Horrmann, since the commencement of their business career, have made steady progress, until their production reaches 80,000 barrels yearly.

The brewery consists of a series of structures of the most complete description. The caves that run into the side of the hill upon which these structures are built, afford excellent facilities for the storage of ice in summer and beer in winter, besides securing an equable temperature at all seasons for the process of producing good lager beer. The fame of this beer has increased its consumption to such an extent that the brewery is taxed to its fullest capacity.

Monroe Eckstein, Prop. Constanz Brewery, Four Corners.

From the time of its establishment in 1852 the Constanz Brewery with its picturesque hotel and magnificent pleasure grounds was well frequented on high-days and holidays, by the toiling denizens of neighboring cities across the Bay of New York.

Since its establishment in 1852 by August Schmid & Co., the Constanz Brewery has seen many changes and improvements, and especially at the hands of Joseph Setz, a well-known and respected brewer, who occupied the premises for eight years, and who in 1875 conveyed them to its present owner, Monroe Eckstein, by whom it has been successfully conducted since that time, increasing in business and popularity every succeeding year.

The brewery premises occupy an area of twenty-two acres, and consist of a number of buildings, each adapted to an especial department of the business. The brewery proper is well fitted and arranged with modern plant and appliances, having a capacity of between thirty and forty thousand barrels annually, which can be readily increased. The inside business of the counting-house is conducted under the superintendence of the proprietor, and the outside business by his brother, Alfred F. Eckstein. The hotel and restaurant, which are part of the brewery premises, are exceedingly popular with visitors, not only from other parts of the The nearest island, but also from the adjacent cities. ferry to New York is West New Brighton, which leaves hourly; the incoming boat is met by a stage that conveys visitors to the Constanz Brewery, about two miles distant.

The future of the Constanz Brewery presents a very brilliant aspect. Monroe Eckstein, the proprietor, is well known for bis business qualifications. He is a native American, his father having settled in New York city over sixty years ago, where he has a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Before Mr. Éckstein assumed the proprietorship of the Constanz Brewery its annual sales barely reached seven thousand barrels. The sales have increased during the last six years, when now the annual production ranges between thirty and forty thousand barrels, and is constantly increasing.

Owing to the popularity of Staten Island beer, a new industry—an adjunct to the brewers—has sprung up during the past few years in the form of Bottling Establishments, the most prominent of which are those of Kuntz & Credo, Henry Friemann, Ignac Kryszewski, Birkle & Martens, A. Zorn, Henry Pape, and Frederick Fink.

Other Manufactures.

The oldest manufacturing industry on the island is that of dyeing and scouring, the first establishment for which dates back to 1819, at which time Messrs. Barrett, Tileston & Co. established the same. After a few years a charter of incorporation was obtained under its present name, The New York Dyeing and Printing Establishment, the names of officers of which will be found in the appendix. This company is situated at West New Brighton, employs five hundred people, and consumes $200,000 worth of dye stuffs, and six thousand tons of coal annually.

Later on, in 1851, an establishment, almost identical with the above in its industries, was started by Nathan Barrett, Nathan M. Heal, Joseph H. Heal, Edwin B. Heal, and Abraham C. Wood, who formed a copartner-ship for the purpose of dyeing and scouring and the prosecution of all branches of the business. In 1865 the copartnership was changed to an incorporation. Since that time it has continued to increase and multiply until at the present time the immediate works cover an area of an acre and a quarter, and while the whole surroundings owned and controlled by the company embraces about thirty acres, Barrett, Nephews & Co. are probobly more widely known in this specialty than any other establishment of its kind in the world.

Forty-eight years ago, when the North Shore was a series of farms, and West New Brighton had hardly an existence, Jacob Bodine embarked in the lumber and coal business. The demand at that time for his commodities was not extensive, but year after year saw the building of new houses to which he contributed the lumber, building materials, etc., which were sold at prices making competition with New York profitable both to him and the buyer. In 1840, after his death, his sons, W. H. J. and Edmund, succeeded to the business under the firm name of Bodine Brothers. succeeding year has seen them adding new features to their successful business till now they occupy sixty lots, or two and a quarter acres, own and run a large planing mill where lumber doors, sash, blinds, and mouldings are manufactured, employs forty men, and enjoying a business extending East, West, North and South.

In the hamlet known as Kreischerville are the New York Fire Brick and Staten Island Retort Works, where are made fire brick and gas retorts from a natural deposit found in the earth near. The works are very extensive and are one of the oldest and largest establishments in the United States. The firm, B. Kreischer & Son, have an office at 132 Mangin street, New York.

At the extreme westerly end of Richmond Turnpike, on the west of and beyond Mariners' Harbor, is the American Linoleum Manufacturing Company, the only one of the kind in the United States for the manufacture of patent Linoleum floor cloth, made from pulverized or ground cork and linseed oil, an article quite as ornamental and much more durable than oil cloth, and though more costly at first, in the end much cheaper. The company own about two hundred acres of land and employ about one hundred people.

One of the best known manufacturing establishments on the island is the White Lead Manufactory of John Jewett & Sons, located at Port Richmond. Jewett's White Lead has a national reputation, having been in market since 1846. Over two thousand tons of white lead are manufactured annually.

Louis DeJonge & Co., colorers, printers; and finishers of fancy paper, removed their works from New York to Staten Island in 1852. They cover an area of about two acres, the principal building is 250 x 40 with a wing 125 x 30. An extensive and profitable business is conducted. Louis DeJonge & C. F. Bentgraf are the proprietors; both reside on the island.

Fronting directly on the water near the New Brighton Landing, is the very large plaster mill of Messrs. J. B. King & Co., who have extensive business relations with foreign countries. Their office is at 18 Coenties slip, New York.

At Elm Park is the whiting manufactory of H. F. Taintor, who has an office at 281 Pearl street, New York.

The above are the representative manufacturing establishments situated in the territory covered by this work with an occasional one outside of it.

Hatch Door Manufacturing

MANUFACTURERS OF

Automatic Hatch Doors

FOR POWER AND HAND ELEVATORS.

The danger from fire of the open hatchway forming a flue, together with the risk to life and limb, render the patent of the above company simply invaluable. By their invention the doors are always closed, except while the elevator-car, or sling and load of an ordinary fall, are passed through; for as they approach the hatch, either from above or below, it is gently lifted, and remains open until the car passes it, when it is noiselessly closed, in which condition it remains until it is approached again as before. This apparatus can be applied to any elevator or hoistway now in use in hotels, stores, or elsewhere, as well as to new buildings, and at a trifling cost.

IS ABSOLUTELY WATER-PROOF.

WILL EXPAND AND CONTRACT WITH THE MATERIAL THAT IT COVERS.

PARTICULARLY ADAPTED TO

Tin, Iron, Car-Tops, Iron Bridges, all classes of Iron Work, Smoke Stacks, Marine and Wood Work of all kinds.

Is unlike any other material before used for Tin or Iron, being composed entirely of plastic and elastic substances, which expand and contract with the metal through atmospheric changes without cracking, and retaining its elasticity for years, and varnish-like appearance.

METAL ROOFS.

One summer's sun, in ordinary climates, will evaporate the oil or other more volatile matter used in the composition of all ordinary paints. Thus the only water-turning element is lost, and nothing remains to protect the metal; the filling becomes porous and absorbs the moisture, which, coming in direct contact with the metal, soon produces rust and perforation.

At this stage of deterioration the GUTTA PERCHA PAINT is the only covering in use that will effectually save and protect the tin for years without leaking, as no water or dampness can reach the metal after this paint is once applied.

When applied to smoke stacks it retains for months its brilliant, black appearance.

Presbyterian.

Calvary Presbyterian Church. — This church was started as an "enterprise" by a very few individuals in the year of 1872. Prominent among them were the families of the late Edward Bement and Renssalaer N. Havens, of Augustus W. Sexton, Nathan M.

Heal, William J. Ladd, Ralzie J. Fuller, Henry Miller, Chas. Ellis, and R. E. Robinson. A handsome chapel was soon after erected, which is situated on the corner of Bement and Castleton aves, N. B. It is expected that a church building will at no very distant day be erected on the same lot of ground. The parsonage, built some time after the chapel, stands on Bement ave, south of Castleton ave. The organization has increased rapidly—the first pastor having been the Rev. J. M. Greene—until the present membership is nearly 200, the Sabbath School numbering 400. The present pastor is the Rev. Theodore A. Leggett. elders now in office are: Augustus W. Sexton, Sr., H. R. Miller, Nathan M. Heal; A. W. Sexton, President of Board of Trustees; Wm. J. Ladd, Treasurer. The Sabbath School is under the superintendence of Wm. L. Sexton; singing, congregational.

Seaman's Chapel: Sailors' Snug Harbor; Rev. Chas. J. Jones, Chaplain. There is no organized church in this institution. A handsome church building for the use of the men was erected by the Board of Trustees in 1855. It is located on the eastern end of the grounds facing the Terrace. The Rev. Chas. J. Jones has ministered to the men of the Sailors' Snug Harbor since the spring of 1863. While there is a large number of truly Christian men in this institution, there are no members of the chapel and no Sabbath School. The chapel is the property of the trust and has no separate trustees. The organist, Chas. H. G. Jones, is also leader of the congregational singing, there being no choir. The building will accommodate about 350 people. The attendance is optional, yet a large proportion of the available men are in constant attendance upon the services on the Sabbath. There is divine service twice every day in the week—morning and evening—in a chapel for the purpose, situated in the main hall of the principal (or centre) building. The attendance ranges from 30 to 50 in the summer and from 50 to 80 in the winter. The Scriptures are expounded, in course, daily at each service, the Old Testament in the morning and the New Testament in the evening. The chaplain is an ordained minister of the Presbyterian Church. The sexton is William Edwards.

First Presbyterian: Brownell st., Stapleton. There is no pastor to this church; the place of Rev. Dr. J. E. Rockwell, lately deceased, not having been filled at the time this book went to press. Services, 11 A. M., 7.30 P. M.; Sunday-school, 9.30 A. M.; prayer meeting, Friday, 7.45 P. M.

This Post is named in honor of Robert Gould Shaw, son of Hon. Francis G. Shaw, one of Staten Island's most philanthropic citizens.

Robert Gould Shaw was Colonel of the 54th Massachusetts colored regiment. He fell at the head of his command at the storming of Fort Wagner, and was buried with his soldiers. His body was never recovered, but a beautiful cenotaph stands in the Moravian Cemetery, where his living comrades assemble each year to pay a tribute to the memory of one who led a despised race to avenge the indignities heaped upon the flag that made them free.
